Basic effects The three basic effects — Levels, Curves, and Brightness/Contrast — are used frequently in photography. Some of you are probably already familiar with these effects from when you were creating amateur images in your early days of photography. A Levels effect is a fundamental adjustment that is available in every image editing application. You can use this adjustment for adjustments that are often necessary to your images, such as tweaking the lightness and darkness of your image. You can adjust the intensity of light and dark, which is commonly referred to as `_levels_` in photo editing. The Levels adjustment comes in handy when you need to balance the overall gray value of your image. For example, if you have a very dark image and want to brighten it up, you can use a Levels effect to increase the gray value (intensify the shadows and increase the amount of black in the picture). To apply a Levels effect, follow these steps: 1. Open an image and choose Adjustments ⇒ Curves. 2. Select Auto Lighting from the Curves dialog box that appears

Tag Archives: apple core A while ago I discovered that Blueberries make a great contrast for eating apples! A photo blog post is due soon on this subject so watch out for it! Today I think it would be nice to do a post on something a little more modern. Apple spice is one of the main flavours of autumn and I'm sure all of you are looking forward to the autumn season and the apples and pears that will be available. I also love apples and I'm going to be honest here, I love to bake them! However, I'm not so much into baked apples as I used to be. Mostly because I'm too lazy to prepare the apples for baking and then put them in the oven. That way I need to do more work than just putting the apple in the oven and enjoying it! I also wouldn't eat them because they would be cold when I want to eat them. The oven can wait though, because I also really love to take a bite out of an apple to an apple core! I'm not going to go into details about this here, this isn't a short dessert post. The only ingredients you need are plain and unsalted butter and an apple. The great thing about this appcore is that I will also share with you how to make an apple core an apple core. 1. Cut one apple in half vertically. 2. Split the apple into two halves like this and then cut a line from the top to the bottom of the apple that is about half a centimetre deep. 3. Cut around the line all the way around the apple and then pull out any pieces you can see and cut them in half. Do this until the core is all but in two pieces. 4. Put the apple in a pan with apple juice and butter. Cook the apple in the pan at the stove. It will take a few hours for the core to get soft and the apple to get cooked. 5. When the core is soft remove it from the pan and fill with a scoop of ice cream. I don't really follow a particular recipe but I just fill the core with ice cream and place the core on top of the ice cream. It will be a refreshing dessert! What about you? Did you bake apples when they were little? Don't you want to test
